“

GSIH was the highlight of my year. It was an incredible and indispensable opportunity to dissect our business model and discover how we can scale our impact. Above all, the community at GSIH is its biggest asset. Meeting and learning from so many brilliant folks in my cohort, some of whom I remain close friends with today, has been such a gift.

“ GSIH and the incredible facilitators running it understand on a very deep level that the social entrepreneurial path is full of purpose but also challenge and the need for realignment. GSIH taught me the strategic value of rest and reflection, and that our impact can be amplified through radical recharge. It was incredible to meet such a diverse global community of changemakers, that went from complete strangers to feeling like a close-knit family within hours of meeting for the first time—united by our values and hope for a better world. Besides making lifelong friends and collaborators, it was wonderful for me to intentionally step into the role of learner and observer again, to see how others approached the work of systems-change and social innovation education, and to be forever imprinted with a sense of serenity and inspiration to the soundtrack of a jungle that I often tap into as my journey continues.
